Thinks Club Might Have Accepted Under Conditions.Prepared to Race with Ninety-footer
Under Universal Rule, and Says He Still Has Plenty Time to Challenge with "Freak Machine" If Designer
Fife Holds Out Hope of Success.
Will Decide in a Few Days.

London, Sept. 26.—To-night Sir Thomas Lipton met Designer Fife, who came specially from Glasgow. Upon their conference depends whether Sir Thomas will issue another challenge under the conditions governing the other cup races. If Mr. Fife will take the responsibility of designing a freak boat and offer Sir Thomas some hope of success, the latter will challenge. In fact, it is extremely likely that he will challenge anyway in order to demonstrate to the American people that he is sufficient of a sportsman to have another try, even though in his heart he believes that under present conditions he has not the slightest chance of lifting the cup.

Cannot Hide His Chagrin.

It would be difficult to-day throughout London to find a more disappointed man than Sir Thomas. Clever artist in dissimulation that he is, his feeling of chagrin was much too intense to be concealed, and while reciting in suave and polished terms his surprise at the declaration of his challenge, he would interpose some side remarks that clearly showed his true feelings. He admitted that the rejection came like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky. He said he had every reason to believe from his talks with members of the New York Yacht Club this summer and from what Mr. Fife told him upon his return from America that a challenge suggesting a departure from the freak type of boat would not only be accepted, but would be welcomed. So confident was his belief in the acceptance of his challenge that designs for two boats were already under way.

Would Race Under Universal Rule.

Sir Thomas said to-night: "When the cup was first won it was by a healthy, seaworthy type of boat, the America. Within ten years boats have developed into freaks, and for me again to challenge would simply impose the necessity to build a more extreme type of freak than the previous challengers. Designers of boats in this country feel that the responsibility is too great to design such types, necessitating in the very voyage across the Atlantic the risk of the lives of the men who navigate them. As I waited nearly four years, giving others a chance, I thought that perhaps a challenge under the New York Yacht Club's own conditions would prove acceptable.

"While the type of freak machines which have already contested for the cup are no use for other purposes after the races are finished than the scrap heap, races under the universal rule would be educational and scientific from the point of marine architecture, and would furnish models worthy of copying. However, the New York Yacht Club has given its decision.

One Objection Is Puzzling.

"I feel that they know the responsibilities of their position better than I, and I must abide by their decision. I must say I have never met a better set of sportsmen. They have met me in every way possible, and did everything I suggested until now. It would simply delight me to meet their wishes.

"I must confess that the terms of the rejection are puzzling, particularly the sixth clause, stating that I failed to conform with the provisions of the deed of gift in not giving the dimensions of the challenger. I felt that the challenger conformed, save, perhaps, technically, with the provisions of the deed of gift. I indicated that my challenger was in the J class, 68-foot rating, because the next class is the H, and the waterline in that class would be over 94 feet, exceeding the limitations of the deed of gift.

Lipton's Course Not Decided Upon.

"I may say my suggestion to make the challenger in the J class came from several American yachtsmen. Relying upon that clause in the deed of gift reading: 'The club challenging for the cup and the club holding the same may, by mutual consent, make any arrangements satisfactory to both as to dates, courses, number of trials, rules, sailing regulations, and any and all other conditions of the match, in which case the ten months' notice may be waived,' I did entertain the hope that the committee, could, if it desired, accept my suggestion, which I believed made for a more satisfactory type of boat and contest.

"Naturally I do not know at the moment what I will do. I am prepared to challenge with a ninety-footer under the universal rule—yes, with any size under that rule. If Mr. Fife is willing to take the responsibility and feels that I have got a chance I would be only too pleased to challenge again under previous conditions, and perhaps, if it is felt that I have not got a chance, I will stop. I will decide what course to take within a day or so. I have plenty of time to send a fresh challenge.

Vanderbilt Replies to Lipton.

Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, when told of Sir Thomas Lipton's willingness to challenge with a ninety-footer under the New York Yacht Club rules, said:

"Well, that doesn't bring any change in the situation. That is still insisting on the new measurement rule which it has been expressly declared in the resolutions is not suitable for the America's Cup races, which are for speed. You know the new rule does not make for speed, and that boats built under it can be sailed round and round by what they call the freak boats.

"If Sir Thomas Lipton will build a boat with a ninety-foot water line and without Gave Washington Address.

Special to The Washington Herald. Cincinnati, Sept. 26.—Since the arrest several days ago of Harry and Howard C. Prichard, promoters of balloon races, it has developed that besides securing prize cups worth $2,000 from local jewelers with out a cent of cash to back them, they also secured subscriptions from prominent business men for sums aggregating $10,000. Not much of this has been collected, however. The names of President Roosevelt, Gov. Hughes, of New York; Mayor McClellan, of New York City; O. P. Belmont, P. Lorillard, H. Flagler, and other prominent Easterners were used by the Prichards in promoting their scheme here. When arrested they had 13 cents between them. They came here from 710 Tenth street northwest, Washington, D. C., but claim New York City is their home.

The Prichards are not known to the Washington police, who said last night the men probably were temporary lodgers at the Tenth street number indicated in the Cincinnati dispatch.

Burton's Manager Accepts Johnson's Challenge in Modified Form.

Cleveland, Sept. 26.—The challenge of Mayor Tom L. Johnson to Congressman Theodore E. Burton, Republican majority nominee for a debate with him, was accepted for Mr. Burton to-day by Chairman E. M. Baker, of the Republican committee, with the modification that the debates take the form of signed statements to be published broadcast.

While this acceptance was being hailed by the Democrats with glee, the Central Labor Body, the united trades and labor council made public a list of endorsements and condemnation of candidates in which both Mayor Johnson and Congressman Burton were condemned for advocating granite for the county court house and Federal building against local labor demands for sandstone.

Newberry Visits the Navy Yard.

New York, Sept. 26.—Stung by the assertion that, in violation of an Executive order, he had instructed officers under his command to lobby in the interest of the army and navy pay bill, Rear Admiral Goodrich, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, to-day recalled a letter that had been sent to the officers in the yard at his direction, conveying the wish of Paymaster Cowie that all officers of the navy urge their respective Representatives in Congress to support the measure.

The admiral had issued the letter on Tuesday in the face of an order signed by President Roosevelt in January last, which forbade officers and employees of the government to attempt to influence legislation for increase of pay. The admiral admitted to-day that he might have been unwise in sending out the letter, but he said he did not think he was violating the order, because the bill had been approved by the President and heads of the War and Navy departments.

Newberry's Coming a Surprise.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Newberry visited the navy yard in Brooklyn this morning. He arrived in an automobile, and the naval officers were surprised when he appeared, as no notification had been given of his intended visit. It is believed that the Assistant Secretary went to inquire into the charges made against several navy yard employees of taking an active part in the primary against Robert A. Sharkey, a former naval officer.

The Assistant Secretary and Rear Admiral Goodrich were in conference a long time. It may be that they discussed the pay-bill letter, but it is not believed that was the main object of Mr. Newberry's visit.

GAYNOR IS RENOMINATED.

Justice "Platform in Himself," Says

His Sponsor.

New York, Sept. 26.—Justice William J. Gaynor was unanimously renominated for Justice of the Second judicial district at a convention of the Independence League, held in Haviland Hall, 339 Clarkson avenue, Brooklyn, to-night.

The convention was made up of delegates representing King's, Queen's, Nassau, Suffolk, and Richmond Counties, comprising the Second judicial district. William A. Robinson, son of the late Congressman "Rebelle" Robinson, was the permanent chairman.

As a proxy for a delegate from Suffolk, Robert Stewart, of King's County, nominated Justice Gaynor. In doing so, he said that Justice Gaynor stood for the common people, and was a platform in himself.

Justice Gaynor was then nominated by acclamation, and on motion of Mr. Powell the balance scales was adopted as the emblem of the party. The Republican and Democratic judicial conventions will be held in the King's County courthouse next week, and will nominate Justice Gaynor.

FISH IS CAUSTIC;
ACCUSES HARRIMANMagnate Among Borrowers

MAIN ISSUE IS DODGED

No Mention of Union Pacific Intentions in Letter.Harriman's Bill of Particulars, He Says, Fails to Take Up Question of That Road's Relation to the Illinois Central—Declares Crop Reports of Latter Road Are Sent to Harriman Over Union Pacific Wires.

New York, Sept. 26.—Styvesant Fish retorted sharply to-day to the letter sent by President Harriman to stockholders of the Illinois Central early in the week. In regard to borrowings from the Illinois Central, he says that Mr. Harriman and his fellow-directors had elected him president three successive times after full knowledge of the transactions, and states that other directors of the company, particularly Mr. Harriman and Charles A. Peabody, had borrowed large sums of money from the company—Mr. Harriman on several occasions, and in very large sums.

In explaining the loans of the company's money to himself, Messrs. Harriman and Peabody, and other directors, Mr. Fish said that the company had often been in the possession of surplus funds which it was advisable to put out on demand or short-term notes, so as not to lose the interest on the money.

Harriman Heaviest Borrower.

"All these loans, whether to directors or others, were secured by ample collateral, and in only one, the loan to Dresser, was a loss encountered in all the twenty years of his official connection with the company. Particularly was there no loss on loans to any other directors. Any such loan to any of the directors was fully entered on the books, and all the details were open to knowledge of every director.

"Mr. Harriman was the heaviest borrower, by far," continued Mr. Fish, in explaining his statement. "In the aggregate the loans to him amounted to many millions. Most of them were made in the earlier years of his connection with the company, before he had access to insurance company moneys."

Main Question Avoided.

Mr. Fish insists that the principal matter at issue is whether the Illinois Central is to become a subordinate part of the Union Pacific system. He notes that this question was seriously avoided in President Harriman's reply to his request for proxies.

By way of proving the charge previously made that Illinois Central crop reports are sent direct to Mr. Harriman's office, Mr. Fish showed a report of the date September 23, which reached the other directors of the road only to-day. The reports and other Illinois Central reports, he says, were sent direct by subsidiaries over the Union Pacific wires to Mr. Harriman's office, at 139 Broadway. Mr. Harriman sent the reports to the Illinois Central offices, across the street, when it occurred to him to do so.

Reports Go to Harriman.

"The important thing about this," Mr. Fish said, "is the proof that Illinois Central offices are reporting direct to the Union Pacific offices over Union Pacific wires. Of course, earlier in the year, before a conclusion is reached as to the crop yield, exclusive information such as the Illinois Central crop report would be advantageous to any speculator."

FURLONG'S WILL MISSING.

Lawyer Says Neither Can Property of Millionaire Be Found.

New York, Sept. 26.—The Amen Corner held a special meeting at the Fifth Avenue Hotel to-night to take action upon the death of Gen. Charles F. Furlong, who was for many years a member of the Corner. Memorial resolutions were adopted, and it was resolved that the general name be read on the roll call at every meeting for the coming year.

George H. Sullivan, of the firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, Gen. Furlong's lawyers, attended the meeting and announced that since his death Wednesday it had been impossible to find a will, any relatives, or any of the general's property, which has been understood by his friends to amount to nearly a million dollars.

The Amen Corner then passed resolutions to have all arrangements made for the funeral at their expense, and to have the body taken to Woodlawn and put in a receiving vault, pending appearance of the relatives and the discovery of some of his property. The expenses will then, of course, be made good to the Amen Corner. Mr. Sullivan said that the funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will be attended by members of the Amen Corner.

BRYAN BOOMLET IN ILLINOIS.

Nebraskan's Friends Hope to Start It

at State Fair.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—William Jennings Bryan's friends will try to awaken the Democrats of Illinois from their slumber of many years and start a rousing boom at Springfield this week for Bryan's nomination for President.

There will be a State fair Bryan round-up, beginning on Friday, and its engineers hope to get it over with by Sunday, so as to leave the field clear for the Republican roll-calling next week. It is understood there will be events of importance and much excitement at the Republican love feast.

The Bryan committee seeks to link together all Mr. Bryan's friends for the purpose of getting Illinois delegates to next Democratic national convention instructed for the Nebraskan.

FIGHT OVER FAIRBANKS HOT.

Methodists Seek to Name Him Delegate by Acclamation.

Columbus, Ind., Sept. 26.—There are fifteen candidates for delegate to the quadrennial at Baltimore now in this city in attendance on the session of the Indiana Conference of the Methodist Church, and some of them and their friends are doing a hustling stunt that was never before witnessed in church meetings.

The conference of lay members which will elect the quadrennial delegates will be held to-morrow, when arrangements will be perfected to confer the honor upon Vice President Fairbanks by acclamation.

Some of the delegates say Mr. Fairbanks has been persecuted over the cocktail incident, and that it will be a fitting rebuke to his prohibition enemies to send him as a quadrennial delegate by unanimous vote. Seven delegates are to be selected, and some of the candidates are making their campaigns as friends of the Vice President, but this scheme is not bringing about very great results.

The proposal to adopt resolutions setting out the opposition of the church to serving wine seems to have been abandoned.

FIELD GIVES UP WIFE.

Poet's Son Discontinues Efforts to Communicate with Her.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—All hope of finding his missing wife was abandoned to-day by Eugene Field second. The romance that had its beginning in a bridal trip to Central America, where young Field and his wife planned to find a banana grove and live under the palms of the tropics, has come to an end.

The poet's son is disconsolate, but he has declared positively that he will make no further advance to Mrs. Field, who was last heard from at Lake Minnetonka, Minn.

It was reported several days ago that Mrs. Field second had eloped with George W. Peavey, millionaire clubman, of Milwaukee, but the report was not verified. No word has been received, although her husband has made every effort to communicate with her.

OKLAHOMA WILL GET IN.

President Roosevelt Expects to Give

Out Proclamation.

It was officially announced yesterday afternoon that the President will approve the constitution of the proposed new State of Oklahoma, and that the Executive proclamation will be promulgated at an early date.

The instrument was not entirely acceptable to the President, for it is believed, among other things, that the Democrats, who were in control of the constitutional convention, have effected a gerrymander of the State, but in the opinion of the Executive, the chief question for him to consider is whether the constitution conforms substantially to the terms of the enabling act passed by Congress. The instrument does so conform is the belief of the President as the Attorney General.

LEAVES CELL TO HELP FRIEND

Francis, of Storey Scandal Fame,

May Testify for Marrin.

Has Conference with Man Accused of Part in Cotton Company

Swindle.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—Stanley Francis, under strong guard, left the Eastern Penitentiary to-day long enough to confer with Frank C. Marrin, who is on trial in the United States District Court room charged with conspiracy to use the mails to defraud.

Francis, who is serving a five-year sentence for the same offense of which "Judge" Stone is accused, has been subpoenaed by his old friend and business associate as a witness in his defense. He did not testify to-day, however, as the government's case is not yet ended.

Two overseers of the penitentiary took Francis to the post-office building, in which the trial is being held, before court opened this morning. There, locked up in the steel cage in the United States marshal's office on the third floor, he waited until nearly 1 o'clock before he saw Marrin.

The well-groomed, businesslike looking man, who began to serve his term in the penitentiary four months ago for his part in the Storey swindle, is much changed in appearance by a beard which has grown since his incarceration. He was neatly dressed to-day, as of old, however, having discarded the prison stripes for a well-fitting suit of dark material.

He nodded pleasantly to the deputy marshals as he entered the quarters which were so familiar to him during his trial last spring.

Marrin left the courtroom, with Mr. Marsh, one of the attorneys, at about 12:30 o'clock, and had a consultation with Francis.

What the conference was about Marrin would not say, as he was on his way back to Judge Holland's courtroom, and Francis was also silent. It is understood that they discussed features of the Storey Cotton Company and the advisability of placing Francis on the witness stand.

Late this afternoon Francis was taken back to the penitentiary. It is not likely that he will be brought forth again this week, as the government's attorneys have not yet approached the end of their case. Postal inspectors, expert accountants, and many other important witnesses are yet to be heard.

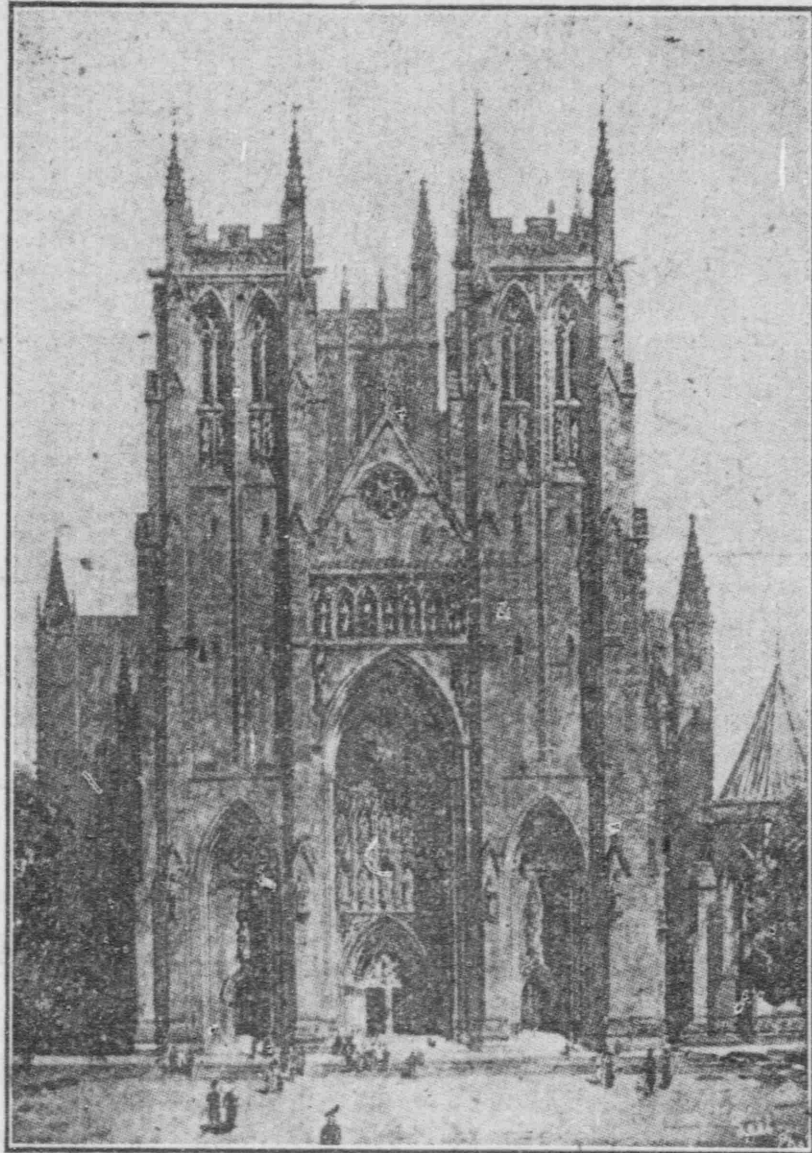

Several more victims of the Storey swindle were on the witness stand to-day. Mrs. Mary V. Hilt, a widow, of Lock Haven, Pa., who is 63 years old, and Mrs. Amanda Hartzell, of Bethlehem, who was duped out of $1,350, were two whose testimony most excited the pity of the audience.

State Senator William J. Bradley, of Camden, the receiver of the defunct concern, gave detailed testimony relative to the state of its finances as he found them, and of his work in straightening out its tangled accounts, which were left by the flight of the promoters.

GARRETT RIDES GOAT

Mayor of Glen Echo Initiated into "Frat."

PSEUDO COLLINS TO RESCUE

Doughty Village Marshal, or His

Counterpart, Takes Part in Ceremo-

Oh, shades of Aristides and the Immortal Plato! Oh, ho! polio and tokolo!

Sit tight on the coffin of all the ancients, ye tombstones, for they will try hard to turn over in their graves! Mayor John

Garrett, big stick of Glen Echo, master mind of the Conduit road, and the first to escape from under the heavy lid of Secretary Taft, has joined a Greek letter fraternity! He is a Sigma Nu Phi!

Oh, manœuvre!

Last night, when the city fathers had betaken themselves to peaceful slumber and the vestal virgins and shop girls had left the amphitheatre, a body of youths from the National Law School began an initiation of Mayor John, and at the end he was duly installed as sergeant-at-law, besides being tired and disheartened and glad to retire to his little cottage, in a village near Cabin John.

Just Walked and Walked.

First, under the persuasion of the fraternity cut-ups, he became a peripatetic, and walked and walked. He was compelled to be undignified, to address lamp-posts, and sink to frightened and unbecoming canines. Then he became a Stoic and bore with Socratic fortitude the gibes and sallies of the bright embryo barristers who practiced their best efforts at cross-examination at his expense.

He was asked why he was a "bumpste little official," and with manly courage he answered, "Ask me not; I have suffered much with incubations."

He was questioned as to what part of the United States Glen Echo rested in. And with that characteristic satire and jocose acumen, he replied with deep emotion:

"Members of the town council—or, rather, gentlemen of the fraternity, the world at large, the heavens, the universe! It gives me great pleasure to address—"

(Cries of "get the hook!" "This isn't Glen Echo!" "Come to Briny!" "bear with me awhile and I will unfold to you a tale of oppression," and loud demands that the question be answered and suggestions that it would be more comfortable for the mayor if he refrained from making his usual mother-with-a-child-in-her-arms speech.)

"Since I am but brought here only to be insulted, I will brief, as a plain, blunt man, the action of the Federal authorities leads me to believe that Glen Echo is not in the United States. It has been treated as a foreign power, and I am its minister plenipotentiary, and I—"

(Loud exclamations of "We didn't ask you about yourself!" "Don't be always telling us about something jessie.")

Enter Marshal Collins.

Then entered Marshal Collins, or his counterpart, and a prisoner. "Let him be searched," commanded Garrett after he had been prodded with dainty curtain poles by some frat. man. He was searched, and $37 in real money (say not so, Clara, and at a fraternity house) was taken from him.

"How is this to be divided?" asked Collins.

"Give it to me," answered the mayor. "Not a chance," responded the obedient marshal, and he began to count: "One for me, one for you; one for me, one for you."

"But where does Glen Echo get off?" asked the prisoner.

"One for me, one for you," chanted Marshal Collins, and when he came to thirty-six he stopped.

"The old dollar goes to Glen Echo," he answered, and mumbled under his breath, "and Glen Echo is a—"

Then, after other idiosyncrasies of the mayor were exploited, he was allowed to dismount from the goat, to become an epicurean, and was dined 'dined' at a full-dressed member of the Sigma Nu Phi—a regular colleague.

BISHOP WOODCOCK
ROUSES DELEGATESStirring Sermon to St. Andrew Brotherhood.

NO PLACE FOR QUITTERS

Only Men Who Can "Stand the Gaff" Are Wanted.Vast Audience Hears Eloquent Kentucky Prelate in Continental Hall on the Value of Personal Sacrifices for Christ—Has No Use for Christian "Has Been" or the Man Who Says He Is "Going to Do."

"If one-half of the lack of Christianity in the world comes from indifference, the other half comes from men who are 'quitters.' Do not be a quitter. A quitter is one of the meanest and most cowardly things on earth. Do not be a quitter. The quitter is a pessimist, and a pessimist gets fat on dreaming great things and then uses the accumulated tissue in destructive criticism, who blows out the light to see how dark it is. The pessimist is a man who does not believe in Jesus Christ, and the great tragedy of human conduct is human cowardice."

With these strong sentences delivered in the course of his lecture on "A Man's Personal Sacrifice for Christ," Right Rev. C. E. Woodcock, Bishop of Kentucky, brought the Brotherhood of St. Andrew to its feet last night in Continental Hall.

The bishop, a young looking man, with iron gray hair, spoke earnestly and with no attempt to rise above the heads of his hearers, but seemed to strike deep in language that could be understood by the youngest delegate in the hall. His audience was the largest that has attended a meeting, for a vast throng of members arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, too late for the morning session.

Preceding the bishop's address, Mr. J. H. Gardiner, president of the brotherhood, called on Archdeacon Stuck to pronounce the prayer.

Costliness of Christ's Service.

Bishop Woodcock was then called on,

and said, in part:

"We are here to realize that there is no hope of service from the brotherhood man whose power of sacrifice is over-ruled by fear of failure. The service of Christ costs something, especially when it is whole-hearted, direct in purpose, and exactly the same when no one is watching. Many are good
